

... since the essential, here, is the depth of an unawareness which, beginning with God's impression and presence, reveals man to himself. Man finds himself in the refraction of the divinity upon him - which is a fact of human nature- the rift between safety.....and the vigor which pushes him to extend increasingly the domain of consciousness.